

Spreading Health NEWS Bulletin: November 2014 to June 2015

Summary

The most recent Strategic Humanitarian Service (SHUMAS) Cameroon report covers a period of seven months from November last year. It includes activities of nurses in training, and nurses in their communities where they are working in health centres. Some have now completed their three years of services following their training paid for by Spreading Health. They are all busy nursing patients in antenatal and postnatal clinics, undertaking vaccination campaigns and other outreach activity as well as basic consultation.

The student nurses are all doing well in their training programmes, writing and studying for their continuous assessments, internships, and examinations. Their studies have mostly been going smoothly but for some a few minor set backs. SHUMAS also reports on the payment of students' fees and allowances, their follow up of students in school, the routine monthly meetings, and an impact assessment of nurses in the communities. As well as the work of recruiting the next batch of spreading health students. The last seven months activities reflect the continuing success of the Spreading Health project. Well done everybody, not least the nurses and students.

Follow up of students in school

Meetings each month have continued, and the attendance has always been very good. There has been no absences without permission. The meetings aim to help the students to share experiences, talk about the challenges and how to overcome them. It also helps SHUMAS keep track of individual progress and any problems. Some members of staff always attend the meetings. Participation (engagement and involvement) in these meetings is always high and encouraging.

The nurses in the community health centres

SHUMAS have continued to monitor and assess nurses who have returned to their different communities through visits and phone calls. The nurses that have completed their training are all working very hard and managing to send in the reports of their different activities in spite of the problems of distance and poor computer networks.

The first batch. The first 5 Spreading Health State Registered Nurses from 2010/2011:

Omer Tawong from Bamdzeng

After 4 years in the community, Omer is still working at the Biofarm health centre. Most patients are students from the Mbororor and Kingomen communities. The centre still lacks some basic equipment

Wirnkar Ntoshini from Noi Visombo

Wirnkar is still in the community in his 3rd year of service, and is very busy. The number of patients keeps growing. He is looking forward to the CPD course in October. A big challenge is the lack of electricity in the community health centre.

Nsakse Havilah from Lui

Havilah changed from working in Lui community to Kovifem community after 3 years. She was willing to continue there but the community refused to increase her compensation, so she left and is working in Kovifem still under SHUMAS supervision.

Wirba Zuilaika from Ngehzend

Zuilaika left the community she served for 3 years after a decision to pursue a degree program, but intends to return to the community.

Toh Elvis from Njeng Batibo

Elvis is still working hard in his community, actively carrying out all routine nursing activities in the health centre. He also participates in all the vaccination campaigns and conducts 'health talks' in communities. Problems of electricity supply and limited equipment continue.

The second batch. 2 State Registered Nurses and 2 Nurse Assistants from 2011/2012:

Rebecca Mboubekue from Folap

SRN. Rebecca left the community before the three years were up, and SHUMAS are following up her case with the Legal department to ask that she pays back what was spent on her as agreed in the protocol agreement at the beginning of the contract.

Lukong Ethel from Fahkui

Nurse Assistant. Ethel served her one year in the community as agreed and then left.

Aishtu Yunyuy from Limbo

Nurse assistant. Aishtu left her community after serving for one year, but recently she has been in touch to ask SHUMAS for help to be trained as a State Registered Nurse

Jolene Kitavniadze from Kikaikelaki

SRN. Jolene served her three years and then got married and relocated. Now busy looking after her baby.

The third batch. 2 State Registered Nurses and 3 Nurse Assistants from 2012/2013:

Ndzedzenyuy E from Mbah

Nurse Assistant. Served for one year and then decided to further his studies.

Nchoncho Gladys Los –Nwa

Nurse Assistant. Gladys is still working in the community.

Sister Noline Munyar from Ako

SRN. Still very active in the community. Sister Noline is doing well and the number of patients she sees has increased. Key problem is the lack of electricity.

Sister Delphine Shiri from Ntasen

SRN. Sister Delphine was helped by her community to pursue further studies. She worked in the community for one year and won a scholarship to study abroad. Before leaving, she signed an undertaking to return and continue to serve in the same community.

Nfout Assana from Fossette

Nurse assistant. No longer there now, but Assana completed three years service in the community.

The fourth batch: 3 State Registered Nurses and 3 Nurse Assistants from 2013/14:

Abakar Sidick from Goulfey, Far North Region

SRN. Abaker is doing well since starting work last year in his community. The main challenge here is Boko Haram creating panic in this area of the country.

Kewir Donald from Roh, Vitangtaa

SRN. Donald is back in his community doing his best to revamp the health centre. Very limited equipment is slowing down this work.

Chem. Lawan from Dom-Noni

SRN. Doing well in the health centre. Lawan's health centre was equipped by Mike Holgate, an Aid Camp volunteer from the UK. This enabled Lawan to start consultations and other nursing activities in a community health centre, which had not been functional since it was constructed 4 years before. The community has not yet started to compensate him, but he is committed to continue to serve his community

Pepouere Aoudou from Njitapon

Nurse Assistant. Aoudou served his community for the agreed one year and then decided to continue working for his people.

Tachou Innocent from Amasi

Moving forward: recruitment of the 8th batch of Spreading Health students

Recruitment of Spreading Health students for the academic year 2015/2016 is in progress. It was launched in January when posters were circulated, and SHUMAS facilitated radio talks on the program, and community focus groups. SHUMAS has received about 40 applications. The written and oral examinations used to select students is scheduled for the 1st week of August 2015.

Closing remarks

The attendance of the students at the SHUMAS monthly monitoring and support meetings has been fantastic, and shows that the students know the importance of the meeting for their success during the training period.

SHUMAS reports that the students are very grateful to Spreading Health and to SHUMAS for the opportunity to study, but we are grateful in our turn for the hard work that continues to bring success to the project. The impact on the community is evident. The nurses already back in their communities are working hard to improve the health situation for their people, and succeeding. Thank you all.

Some challenges remain. Withdrawal of two students due to ill health, both recruited in the 2014/2015 academic year, is a set back, but SHUMAS has a plan to recruit new students who applied from Level 2 and already in training to replace them. Limited health facilities in community health centres means that most of them still have severe problems, which limit them functioning fully despite the presence of trained nurses. Compensation given to nurses in most communities is still very little.

In October Spreading Health will be taking a small team to Cameroon to run a short post qualifying course. The course will be run over 2.5 days, first in Bamenda and then repeated in Kumbo. SHUMAS has proposed an itinerary for the courses and some visits to schools and health centres. There are also visits to villages scheduled.

So a big THANK YOU to all our supporters as we prepare to sponsor our 8th batch of nurse students.
